

How can you climb up the Geography bands Ladder?

9	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• You can describe, explain and analyse the location of key continents/countries on a map of the world.• You can describe, explain and analyse the links between the natural and man-made features in places• You can describe, explain and analyse the links between Human and physical environments• You can describe and explain in detail why people may hold different views and how this links to human and physical Geography• You communicate using flawless geographical vocabulary
8	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• You can describe, explain and give detailed reasons for the location of key continents/countries on a map of the world.• You can describe and explain in detail using key terminology the links between the natural and man-made features in places• You can describe and explain in detail using key terminology the links between human and physical environments• You can describe and explain in detail why people may hold different views• You communicate using outstanding geographical vocabulary
7	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• You can describe and explain the location and give detailed reasons for the location of some key continents/countries on a map of the world.• You know and can describe and explain in detail using key terminology the natural and man-made features in places• You know and can describe and explain in detail using key terminology how human and physical environments interact• You know and can begin to describe and explain why people may hold different views• You communicate using advanced geographical vocabulary
6	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• You can describe and start to explain the location and reasons for the location of some key continents/countries on a map of the world.• You know and can describe and explain using some key terminology the natural and man-made features in places• You know and can describe and explain using some key terminology how human and physical environments interact• You know and can begin to describe in detail that people may hold different views• You communicate using solid geographical vocabulary

5	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You can describe the location in detail of some key continents/countries on a map of the world. • You know and can describe and begin to explain using some key terminology the natural and man-made features in places • You know and can describe and begin to explain using some key terminology how human and physical environments interact • You know and can describe that people may hold different views • You communicate using good geographical vocabulary
4	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You can describe the location in basic detail of some key continents/countries on a map of the world. • You know and can begin to describe using some key terminology the natural and man-made features in places • You know and can begin to describe using some key terminology how human and physical environments interact • You know that people may hold different views • You communicate using basic geographical vocabulary
3	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You can locate some key continents/countries on a map of the world. • You know and can begin to describe the natural and man-made features in places • You know and can begin to describe how human and physical environments interact • You recognise that people may hold different views • You communicate using some basic geographical vocabulary
2	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You know where some places are located on a map • You can know that there are natural and man-made features in places • You know that human and physical environments interact • You can start to use basic Geographical terminology correctly
1	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You recognise where some places are located on a map • You can recognise that there are natural and man-made features in places • You recognise that human and physical environments interact • You can start to use basic Geographical terminology